DRINK THIS:

LEBLON CACHAÇA

Miami's South Beach is not a difficult place to get a drink. But in this land of blue vodka slushies and piña coladas that have never been near a pineapple, getting a well-made cocktail can be a different story. Not so at B Bar in The Betsy Hotel, where mixologist Quentin Ross makes delectable concoctions in the only bar we've ever been to with a ceiling made of reflective black vinyl (touch it, it ripples!). The ceiling is the most dramatic detail of many which create a sultry ambiance in this dark, underground space. We asked Ross to prepare a cocktail using our favorite spirit of the moment: Leblon Cachaça. The company's bright green trucks are currently a fixture on the streets of New York; if you're lucky enough to find a stationary one, you can chill-out inside with capriniha-flavored sorbet. Now, if only one would park beside a taco truck.... ACTON BELL thebetsyhotel.com

THE COCKTAIL:

1.5 oz Leblon
1 oz passion fruit purée
1 dash fresh citrus juice
4 mint sprigs
Top with ginger beer
Garnish with orange slice
